

This newsletter contains news about the coming summer, a look back at the past winter and also a cautious look ahead to next winter. You receive this newsletter because you had contact with BergXperience this year.

EXPLORE AND PREPARE

The skiing season has just ended and spring is already here! We can't wait to put on our hiking boots and hit the trails. I am all ready to explore new routes this spring and summer.

The summer of 2023 was mainly about discovering the many trails in and around Val di Zoldo and visiting the different huts. I have made beautiful trips, the GPS tracks of many routes have now been made and I have a good idea of the condition and difficulty of the different trails. This summer several groups will hike these routes.

BOOKING IS STILL POSSIBLE

For next summer, a large number of tours have already been booked, ranging from 3 to 6 days and for people traveling alone to groups up to 10 people.

Although hut-to-hut tours in the Dolomites are very popular, our base of operations in Val di Zoldo is less crowded and it is still possible to book a hut-to-hut tour there, even in July and August.

The Dolomites are always beautiful, but perhaps even more so in the early and late season, also because it is less crowded then. The huts are open from 15 June to 21 September. Some huts are even open until the beginning of October.

INSURED TRAVELING

BergXperience has become a member of the Association of Small Travel Agencies in the Netherlands. This is an interest group of travel agencies that stand for a personal approach and are focused on small-scale, sustainable tourism, with respect for the local culture and traditions. One of the advantages for customers of BergXperience is that their booking amount via STO Garant is fully guaranteed in the event of bankruptcy.

WONDERFUL PISTES

Although the winter started with relatively little snow, we hardly noticed, due to the fantastic qualities of the Italian snow masters. The slopes were in great condition throughout the season.

In February and March, a large amount of fresh snow was added, which transformed the Dolomiti Superski area into a true paradise. Especially when you go away from the famous Sella Ronda, it is wonderfully quiet and the slopes remain very good. That's the big advantage of a hut-to-hut ski tour: you get further, outside the well-known areas and it is at least as beautiful, or even more beautiful in my opinion!

SKI TOURS TO JOIN

Also this season I have skied many tours, including some short tours organized by BergXperience. It gave me plenty of inspiration for the next season, while skiing around in the beautiful Dolomites during the whole season.

In the 2024-2025 season, BergXperience will organize some tours for open registration. These tours will last 4 days and every tour visits a different part of the ski area. Keep an eye on www.bergxperience.nl for what's on offer! Of course, you can also sign up for a private tour. For registrations of 6 people or more, the costs will be almost the same than a tour on registration. The advantage is that you can put together a preferred route yourself. Or let yourself be surprised by BergXperience.

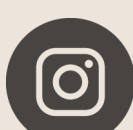

SLEEPING IN A RIFUGIO

The rifugios (mountain huts) in which guests of BergXperience spend the night are not very luxurious, but they are equipped with many comforts. In the evening there is a 3-course dinner with nutritious mountain food and in the morning there is a breakfast buffet. How extensive this is, differs per hut and mainly depends on how easy (or difficult) it is to supply the hut. After all, all food and beverages have to be transported to the hut. You usually sleep in a dormitory. The beds come with a blanket or duvet and a pillow. Use of your own sheetbag is mandatory and you must also bring your own towel. It is possible to shower in the huts, but because water is scarce in the mountains you often have to buy a coin for the shower, for which you can use about 25 liters of hot water.
